

Jason Hafeman is the Outreach Manager at Project Home and has been with the Madison nonprofit since 2009. He began working in weatherization, first as a crew person and then as a crew leader. In 2012, he transitioned to the outreach role where he handles marketing, website and social media management, event and volunteer coordination, fundraising, media relations and privately funded program planning and development. Jason also is responsible for planning and scheduling Project Home's free Home Maintenance Classes, which include Basic Household Plumbing, Cost Effective Energy Improvements and How to Prevent Basement Flooding. He has organized and led groups of volunteers on several landscaping projects to correct basement flooding issues, during the past 6 years.
